

COACH'S CORNER

I'm sure that you have read enough about me in my introduction. This isn't about me. This is about our basketball program. If you have ever scored a point, grabbed a rebound, or dropped an ounce of sweat during a practice, you are in this family. This is a special family, one that I'm honored to be a part of.

The best part of my job so far has been meeting with alumni and the all of the wonderful people in Greensburg. Everyone that I have met with has been welcoming and generous. People are excited about this program and that gets me excited. I know it is the honeymoon period, and I haven't lost a game yet, but I am overwhelmed by all of the support.

If we want to get this program back on track, I'm going to need all of your help. One coach or one player is not going to turn this thing around. I have spent my first month trying to collect as many good people as I can to be a part of this program. I want you guys to be a part of this journey. When we win, we all win.

Don't be a stranger. If I haven't met you yet, please introduce yourself. Feel free to call, text, or email me if you have any ideas that can help our program, or you just want to talk some basketball. Obviously, we would love to see you at our games, and if you ever wanted to come watch a practice or an open gym just let me know.

What is our team going to look like? That is a good question. Ideas about who we want to be aren't fully formed. They will become clear as we start to work on them. I have a plan, and I'm going to try to execute it to the best of my ability. Am I going to make some mistakes along the way? Yes. But that isn't going to stop me from trying.

I will create a system based on our players, not the other way around. Fundamentals are more important than our system. No matter what defense we run or plays we draw up, fundamentals will always be more important. -Brody Jackson

Brody Jackson Selected as Pitt-Greensburg Men's Basketball New Head Coach

After an intensive search for a new head coach for the Men's Basketball Team, which included 130 candidates from the United States, Australia and New Zealand, Pitt-Greensburg has selected Brody Jackson as its new Men's Basketball Head Coach.

"I have been blessed with the unbelievable opportunity to become a head coach of a college basketball program at 31-years-old. I am not going to let down the people who helped make this happen," said Coach Jackson, who for the past six seasons served under Coach Mike Fuline at the University of Mount Union in Alliance, Ohio.

Jackson's coaching philosophy has developed from being a star player, becoming a high school varsity coach at 23-years-old, observing successful coaches, studying coaching philosophies, attending clinics, and serving under Coach Fuline. Accountability, appreciation, respect, enthusiasm, and competitiveness are five core values that will comprise the centerpiece of Coach Jackson's basketball program at Pitt-Greensburg. His goals include developing his players socially, academically and athletically on and off the court. His intent is to create a positive learning environment and culture for his players using these core values to attain the stated goals.

"I can't guarantee how many wins we will get this year or next, but I can guarantee that we are going to work extremely hard and be the best team that we can be," he stated with a confidence which has impressed all who have met him.

In recent weeks, Jackson has traveled to the homes of each of his players, and spoken personally with them and their parents. He has also taken the time to personally thank, and interact with Pitt-Greensburg President Dr. Sharon Smith, Athletic Director Anthony Berich and members of the search committee for this great head coaching opportunity.
